DAVENPORT, Iowa - May 10, 2023 -
Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC, an HVAC and plumbing company based in Davenport, IA, has revealed that they are offering air conditioning (AC) repair and installation for homeowners and business owners in the Quad Cities area. The Quad Cities is a region composed of the cities of Moline, Rock Island, and East Moline in northwestern Illinois and Davenport and Bettendorf in southeastern Iowa. The Quad Cities metropolitan area is the biggest along the Mississippi River in Iowa and between the St. Louis and Minneapolis-Saint Paul metropolitan area.

The AC technicians from Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC have the skills, knowledge and experience in troubleshooting the air conditioner system and then fixing the problem. They are advising homeowners to look for any warning signs that their AC system is starting to fail. First of all, the AC should be running quietly. Thus, if there are any loud buzzing, hissing, banging or any kind of noises while the AC is operating, it may be time to call Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC. Second, if the AC is blowing out warm air instead of cold air, there might me a compressor problem or a refrigerant leak. Third, if there are pools of water or moisture near the AC unit, there might be an evaporator coil problem or a refrigerant leak. And lastly, if the AC system appears to be running continuously or the electric bill may have become unusually high, it might be time to have the AC checked.

Those who are interested in having their AC systems checked may want to check on the Northwest Plumbing, Heating & AC Deal of the Month or on how to become a service partner of Northwest. Northwest Plumbing offers service partner agreements to ensure that the AC system of a client is subjected to regular preventative maintenance not only to make sure that the system will be there to provide the needed cool air when the hot summer days come but also to avoid costly repairs in the future.
