Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite Announces Comprehensive Guidance for Florida Divorce Proceedings

March 23, 2026

JACKSONVILLE, FL - March 23, 2026 -

Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite, a Jacksonville-based family and criminal law firm, announces the availability of comprehensive legal guidance for individuals navigating the complexities of divorce proceedings in Florida. The firm's team of attorneys, including three Board Certified Marital & Family Law Experts, provides strategic counsel to help clients understand their options and make informed decisions during what can be an emotionally challenging process.

Florida's divorce laws present unique considerations that require careful navigation, from equitable distribution requirements to parenting plan development. The state's status as an equitable distribution jurisdiction means that marital assets and debts are divided fairly, though not necessarily equally, making legal guidance essential for protecting individual interests. Additionally, Florida's approach to parenting arrangements, which focuses on time-sharing rather than traditional custody concepts, requires thorough understanding of statutory factors and judicial preferences.

The firm's divorce services encompass both contested and uncontested proceedings, addressing the full spectrum of issues that arise during marital dissolution. These matters include property division, alimony determinations, child support calculations, and the development of comprehensive parenting plans. For military families, the firm also addresses the specific federal regulations and benefits considerations that apply to service member divorces.

"Understanding the legal framework is crucial for anyone considering divorce in Florida," said Jay Henderlite, Managing Partner at Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite. "The decisions made during divorce proceedings can have lasting impacts on financial security, parenting relationships, and future opportunities. Our role is to ensure clients have the knowledge and advocacy they need to navigate these decisions effectively."

Financial considerations in Florida divorces extend beyond simple asset division. The firm assists clients in understanding the implications of marital versus non-marital property classifications, the valuation of business interests, retirement account divisions through Qualified Domestic Relations Orders, and the tax consequences of various settlement structures. Alimony determinations, which can include bridge-the-gap, rehabilitative, durational, or permanent support, require careful analysis of statutory factors and recent legislative changes.

Parenting issues represent another critical component of Florida divorce proceedings. The state's emphasis on maintaining meaningful relationships between children and both parents necessitates detailed parenting plans that address time-sharing schedules, decision-making authority, communication protocols, and holiday arrangements. The firm guides clients through the factors courts consider when determining parenting arrangements, including each parent's capacity to facilitate a close relationship with the other parent, the geographic viability of proposed schedules, and the developmental needs of the children involved.

The firm also recognizes that not all divorces follow traditional patterns. Collaborative divorce options allow couples to resolve issues outside of court through structured negotiations with trained professionals. Mediation services provide another avenue for reaching agreements while maintaining privacy and reducing conflict. For LGBTQ+ families, the firm addresses unique considerations that may arise in divorce proceedings.

Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite maintains offices serving Clay County, Duval County, Nassau County, and St. Johns County. The firm's commitment to family law excellence is demonstrated through its managing partners' Board Certifications in Marital & Family Law, a distinction held by fewer than one percent of Florida attorneys. Beyond divorce matters, the firm handles adoption, paternity, modifications, prenuptial agreements, and relative caregiver actions, providing comprehensive family law representation throughout Northeast Florida.
