Golden Group International Expands Menstrual Hygiene Products for Commercial Facilities

Town of Patterson, New York - July 30, 2026 -
Golden Group International, a U.S. manufacturer of commercial menstrual care dispensers and receptacles, is expanding its focus on menstrual care solutions designed for today's commercial and institutional facilities. As expectations for menstrual product access continue to evolve across workplaces, schools, healthcare facilities, government buildings, hospitality properties, and other public environments, facility managers are increasingly looking for practical, reliable solutions that make menstrual products readily available while simplifying ongoing restroom management.

Golden Group International's commercial menstrual care product line includes durable dispensers and disposal receptacles designed specifically for high-use commercial environments. GGI offers multiple dispenser configurations and capacities to accommodate different restroom layouts, facility requirements, and levels of usage, including free-vend solutions that provide convenient access to menstrual products without requiring payment.

A key advantage of GGI's dispensing systems is compatibility with non-proprietary menstrual products. Rather than requiring facilities to purchase proprietary refills from a single source, GGI dispensers are designed to provide greater flexibility in sourcing compatible tampons and sanitary napkins. This can help facility managers maintain product availability, control ongoing supply costs, and select menstrual products appropriate for their individual facilities.

?Providing menstrual products in commercial restrooms should be practical for both the people using them and the facilities responsible for maintaining them,? said Jackie Transue, President and CEO of Golden Group International. ?Our goal is to provide durable, thoughtfully designed dispensing solutions that make menstrual products accessible while giving facility managers flexibility in how they stock, maintain, and manage their restroom programs.?

Manufactured in the USA for commercial and institutional use, GGI menstrual care dispensers are designed with durability, reliability, and straightforward maintenance in mind. The product line includes options for different capacities and restroom environments, allowing facilities to select solutions based on available space, usage levels, product requirements, and installation considerations.

Beyond dispensing, Golden Group International offers menstrual care disposal receptacles and related solutions that help facilities create a more complete approach to menstrual care within the restroom. By addressing both product access and disposal, facilities can provide a more organized and convenient restroom experience while supporting efficient maintenance for custodial teams.

GGI's menstrual care solutions serve a broad range of commercial and institutional environments, including K?12 schools, colleges and universities, corporate workplaces, healthcare facilities, government buildings, hospitality properties, entertainment venues, and other public facilities. Different environments have different requirements, making dispenser capacity, refill flexibility, placement, accessibility, durability, and ease of maintenance important considerations when selecting a menstrual care program.

Golden Group International also distributes complementary products that support broader restroom and facility upkeep. Among these is Goldshield, a U.S.-manufactured line of water-based antimicrobial products for surfaces, hands, and laundry. Goldshield's surface treatments are EPA-registered microbiostatic products that inhibit the growth of odor-causing bacteria and of mold and mildew on treated surfaces, which supports odor control in restrooms, locker rooms, and other high-use spaces.

Together with GGI's commercial menstrual care dispensers and receptacles, these complementary solutions allow facility managers and procurement professionals to address multiple aspects of restroom hygiene while selecting products appropriate for the specific needs of their facilities.

Supporting Modern Commercial Restrooms

Menstrual product access is increasingly becoming an important component of restroom planning in schools, workplaces, government facilities, healthcare environments, hospitality properties, and other commercial and institutional settings. For facility managers, providing access is only part of the equation. Product compatibility, dispenser capacity, placement, durability, maintenance, replenishment, and disposal all affect how successfully a menstrual care program operates over time.

GGI's approach is centered on practical commercial solutions that give facilities flexibility rather than locking them into a proprietary dispensing ecosystem. With multiple dispenser configurations, non-proprietary product compatibility, commercial construction, and complementary disposal solutions, Golden Group International helps organizations develop menstrual care programs that can be adapted to different restroom environments and operational requirements.

As commercial restroom expectations continue to evolve, Golden Group International remains focused on developing durable, practical menstrual care solutions for the facilities and professionals responsible for maintaining them.
